…I do not have access to the opinion piece but I agree 100%…so I offer the link below…

Admiral McRaven: “Our Republic is Under Attack from The President”

“It is easy to destroy an organization if you have no appreciation for what makes that organization great. We are not the most powerful nation in the world because of our aircraft carriers, our economy, or our seat at the United Nations Security Council. We are the most powerful nation in the world because we try to be the good guys.”

“And if this president doesn’t understand their importance, if this president doesn’t demonstrate the leadership that America needs, both domestically and abroad, then it is time for a new person in the Oval Office — Republican, Democrat or independent — the sooner, the better. The fate of our Republic depends upon it.”

…a few unidentified comments to put this in perspective…

“Military, especially officers, are supposed to keep a lid on political views. That an officer of his level made a public statement like this is HUGE.”

* McRaven is retired. Active duty officers and enlisted are prohibited from publicly criticizing the President by the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UMCJ). Pretty much all the “military” talking heads you see on the news programs to ‘splain what is going on with this or that invasion are retired.

As someone said in the run-up to the first or second Gulf War, “The American officer is prepared to die for their country. They are not, however, prepared to sacrifice their career for their country”

I’m glad he said it, despite his past, since the weight of the words of retired military seem to carry so much weight in this military/warrior-obsessed culture of ours. But I wouldn’t put much stock in it changing anything for those still in uniform.”

“I think you are missing the point here. This guy is an insider in the beating heart of the military officer corps. It is gospel in the military not to cross over to the political side. While you do see politically active retired senior officers, it is rare, and they typically have always leaned political.

But to have a gung-ho conservative like McRaven not simply step forward but flat out say “the President is a traitor and must be replaced” is really unprecedented. It is shocking. And it will have a profound effect because it creates space for other officers to speak more openly about their disgust for the President.”

…the person sitting behind the desk in the Oval Office is not a President, he is not a dictator, he is a mentally ill person that has gutted our Republic like a fish on the beach. He does not care about the rule of law nor understand the concept. He is amoral and unethical. He claims to be a christian but acts as if he were the antichrist. He and those that act on his behalf are Traitors to the Constitution and the citizens of America. These individuals must be held accountable or our Republic will die. The stiffest of penalties must be applied and swiftly, Justice must be served. Upholding the Constitution and preserving the Union is the only thing that matters. Anything less and we have chaos…
